COVID-19

As required by Transport Canada, front-line representatives will ask all travellers specific questions to conduct a health check prior to travel, as well as conducting a temperature check. Travellers who knowingly provide any false or misleading information about their health may be subject to a penalty of up to $5,000. Travellers are required to wear a removable face covering or non-medical mask to cover their mouth and nose at all times during the check-in and boarding process, and for the duration of the flight.

Helijet continues to participate in the Helicopter Association International COVID Clean Pledge and World Travel & Tourism Council's Safe Travels program to meet or exceed any applicable public health regulations. As well, Helijet agents are taking part in the BSAFE Training Program which ensures everyone has a strong foundation in current health and safety knowledge, across the BC tourism and hospitality industry, to increase guest and community confidence during recovery.

In adhering to these programs, Helijet is continuing to monitor and adjust flight schedules, and maintaining the increased sanitizing, and following of Public Health procedures and protocols.
